All music scholarships carry with the following responsibility:

- Conscientiously and fully participate in and support the Aurora University ensembles, including membership in University Chorale, AU Band, Flute Ensemble, or String Ensemble.
- Demonstrate leadership and commitment to development as a musician through preparation for lessons and ensembles, punctual attendance and supportive participation.
- Take four semesters of private lessons beginning the freshman year. Applied lessons aren't offered as a class but arranged at a mutually agreeable time between the student and instructor. The four semesters should occur in the first two years of study at AU, but some flexibility exists for those with complicated class schedules.
- Students will be evaluated by the music faculty each spring to review academic progress and scholarship status. In order to be considered for scholarship continuation, students must maintain a minimum 2.0 GPA, and demonstrate the qualities outlined above.

Please note: It is the student's responsibility to fulfill scholarship commitments.

- Music faculty and Admissions counselors will be notified of the student's scholarship commitments and will monitor their progress; however, faculty will not provide continual reminders.
- The student will be notified once if s/he is in danger of not meeting expectations, with enough time to correct behavior.
- A student who does not meet his or her commitments while on scholarship will not be awarded a scholarship for the subsequent semester.
- Failing to meet commitments also endangers the likelihood of receiving scholarship funding in any future years.
- Repeated lateness or skipping classes, not showing up to a lesson or rehearsal, not meeting deadlines or turning in assignments will necessitate loss of scholarship.
